Ring Enthusiasts At First Meeting

"Danny" DiCenzo Brings Boxing and Wrestling Fans Together; Plan to Have Inter-Team Competition

A meeting of all boxing and wrestling enthusiasts was held in the Gym last Monday afternoon. Danny DiCenzo, one of Providence's rising amateur boxers, was in charge and will direct the work. Plans have been made to have bouts among members of the team and later on in the future to enter into the intercollegiate sport with other schools. The main purpose is to give everyone an opportunity to really learn these sports and to establish it as a regular part of the athletic program. Those interested are asked to see Danny DiCenzo at Alpha Tau Gamma.

Following is a list of those who have already signified their intentions of trying out for the team.

Sigma Kappa Has Its Initiation

Twelve Pledges Receive Final Degree; Banquet Held at East Hall

Sigma Kappa Sorority takes greatest pleasure in the announcement of the initiation on Saturday, Feb. 7, of twelve pledges: Sue Bailey, Ruth Barrows, and Avis Connery of the class of 1933; Marjorie Brownson, Ingeborg Carlson, Bertha Clark, Dorothy Kasper, Ruth Leighton, Anna Lockwood, Marjorie Preston, Ruth Stene and Marion Vayro of the class of 1934.

The Sigma Kappa Banquet was held in East Hall Saturday evening at 7:00 o'clock. Barbara B. Brand, 30, was toastmistress. Many other alumnae were able to be present. Our district counselor, Mrs. Grace Wells Thompson, spent the week-end with us, also several other notable Sigmas active in the national organization.

Rams Suffer First Defeat of Season

Rhody's Final Rally Falls Short of Two Points; Visitors Display Brilliant Passwork; Score 35-33

After winning nine successive games, the R. I. State basketball team was tripped up by the clever shooting Panzer College aggregation from New Jersey. The Rams were up against some strong teams when they played St. Michael's and Northeastern but last week's game proved to be the best of the season. The elusiveness and clever playing of the visitors was brilliant in itself. The five men co-ordinated perfectly and harmoniously together. The visitors led throughout except for a brief time in the first period.

The short dribbling, fast passing and accurate shooting continually baffled the Ramites. Wishnevsky, Kaufman and Capt. Bodner starred for the victors. The way they passed in the back court and then suddenly broke loose for the Kingstonians' basket for a score had the State five bewildered.

The first half in comparison to the latter part of the game was slow. Cragan, Donovan and Osterlund each scored a point in the opening minutes. Wishnevsky then came through for the visitors with a short shot. Capt. Bodner and Carroll followed with seven more points and into a 9-3 lead. Tyler and Cox by some clever shooting tied the score for the locals, but Kaufman shot two baskets to give his team a 13-11 lead at the half.

The opponents dazzled the Rams at the start of play with their short passing. Wishnevsky and Kaufman bombarded the R. I. goal to obtain a 16-point margin. With only six minutes to play the Keaneyts came up from the cellar fast (Continued on Page 3)

Coast Guard Ram's Ninth Hoop Victim

Capt. Tyler, Horseman and Donovan Star as Quintet Led Throughout; Rea Stars for Naval Men; Score 40-20

The Rhode Island State basketball team resumed their court schedule last week by trouncing the United States Coast Guard Academy by a 40 to 20 score. The situation in the first half was entirely in the hands of the Rams, who kept the visitors without a field goal, while they themselves made a rally of 16 points.

In the first half the fans witnessed a slow game with erratic shooting. The Cadets found themselves in hot water whenever they tried to pierce the R. I. defence. Although they did, they could not find the hoop. Captains Tyler, Osterlund, Donovan and Horseman divided the scoring honors. Their 16-point rally gave State a 22 to 5 lead at the half. The Cadets were only able to gather five foul shots.

At the opening of the second half Tyler sank a long shot for the Rams, but soon afterward Rea of the Guards found the hoop with a beautiful one-hand shot from the side. The Sailors immediately were off to a rally with Rea and Zittel, who while alternating in shooting, amassed 13 points. When the Rams found that their lead decreased to 24 to 18, Tyler immediately came back with six points to increase the lead to 30 to 18. State then went forth on another ten-point rally which gave them a total sum of 40.

Capt. Tyler was the high scorer of the evening with a total of 14 points. Rea, Horseman, and Donovan each collected eight points. Rea was the star for the cadets. (Continued on Page 4)

NOTICE

From various sides requests have come to me to resume my Bible Class. This I shall be glad to do, if the demand—expressed in terms of fairly regular attendance—will justify such a course.

After consulting with several of the students who are interested, I have decided to have the Bible Class on Sunday mornings at 10:30 in my classroom, Agricultural Building, Room 22.

The first session is scheduled for Sunday, Feb. 15. Bring Bibles and notebooks. Franz Karbaum

Rhody's Relay Men Ready for Games

Carmado Is Out With a Pulled Tendon; Battle on for Fourth Place on the Team

Rhody sets out to conquer another world next Saturday when she takes a very promising relay team to the Boston Athletic Association's games. For weeks this outfit has been practicing daily with diligence and enthusiasm. And when the weather man keeps smiling on Kingston their winged feet pound the board track for hourly workouts. In inclement weather, however, Coach Tootell puts his charges through their paces in the alley under the gym, which errant Freshmen have so obligingly dug. The members of the squad are: Flaherty, Pratt, Arnold, Towle, Carmado, Krausch, Straight, L. Smith, J. Smith, Minor, Parker, Crandall, Prime, Goldman and Wood.

From all present indications those who will represent the team are: Krausch, Straight, Flaherty—the fourth place is between Prime and Arnold. Up until a short time ago, one of the outstanding prospects was Carmado, but an unfortunate accident has put him out of the running. "Tony" has pulled a tendon in his leg and we certainly regret the misfortune that will keep him from "doing things" for Rhody on the fourteenth.

Among the teams entered in Rhody's class and competing against each other are: Colby, Massachusetts Aggies and Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Rhody has a well-drilled and thoroughly competent team and is expected to offer real competition.

Banquet and Dance Held by Chi Omega

The Chi Omega Fraternity gave its ninth annual banquet, February 6, in East Hall. A large number of the alumni came back for the week-end and attended the house dance Saturday night. Dorothy Leonard was chairman of the banquet, assisted by Gladys Whipple, Louise Fowler, Florence Allen and Margaret Openshaw. Mike Clancey was in charge of the singing.

The banquet was given in honor of the Freshmen initiates, who were the guests of the evening. The speakers, who included Pauline Coggeshall, Margaret Openshaw, Barbara Masterson, Louise Fowler and Mrs. Herbert C. Wells, spoke on the new Greek Theatre, built by Chi Omega at Fayetteville, Arkansas, and its relationship to fraternity life in general. Frances P. Scott was toastmaster for the occasion. Mrs. Frank Keaney spoke for the patronesses, and Miss Tucker and Catherine MacKay also spoke.

Aggies Listen to Forestry Lecture

Illustrated Lecture Given by Archie Hurford of Dept. of Agriculture

An illustrated lecture was given to the R. I. Agricultural Club last Wednesday night in Aggie Hall by Mr. Archie Hurford, head of the Forestry Department under the State Board of Agriculture, and formerly of the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture. Mr. Hurford is a graduate of the University of New Hampshire, having majored in forestry. In his talk he showed slides of the work done toward the eradication of disease and its control. The diseases most prevalent in Rhode Island are the White Pine Blister Rust and Gypsy Moth. Both are, however, under control and no serious damage is being inflicted on the local areas by them. The wood slasher of the past eight years has done more damage than any other one thing—save forest fires—toward the depletion of our woodlands. Few people realize how much value the woods are to us here in the state; for instance, perhaps their greatest value is that of affording the motorized public a place for quiet, natural recreation; secondly, they—the woods—are being developed extensively as game preserves by sportsmen and by various and sundry organizations made up of the out-door loving public. Another proposition gaining in favor in the state is the growing of spruces for the Christmas tree trade. Reforestation slides were thrown on the screen showing the two methods, namely, the one carried out by nature in the natural dissemination of the cones or seeds of the tree and that introduced by man by planting the seedlings. Methods of tree trimming and thinning-out were described and well illustrated.

Following the meeting refreshments were served and it was an (Continued on Page 3)

Manse Meeting Is Very Interesting

Kathleen Ince Leads Discussion; Large Group Present

The Student Fellowship met last Sunday evening at the home of Mr. T. Fred Crandall to discuss "The Movies—What Are They Doing to Our Morals?" The discussion was opened by Miss Kathleen Ince.

The opinion, based on such statistics as could be obtained, seemed to be that adults were not affected to any extent by the present tendency toward immorality in the pictures. It was shown that censorship had failed, and that Mr. Hays, the so-called movie magnate, had no voice in deciding what sort of pictures should be produced, being merely a figurehead in the industry. One person said that the people of today demand a jazzy and somewhat immoral picture. Another said that it was a basic element in the nature of humans which called for such things. Another said that such instinct as sex should be repressed. Figures which were available showed that practically the only ones seriously affected by seeing movies of a questionable character were delinquent children. The problem then seemed to resolve itself into how to provide pictures suitable for delinquent children, a problem which the group did not attempt to solve.

In summary it might be said that censorship had failed to temper the movies, sufficiently for everyone to see them without being harmed. The producers are unable to do anything about it, and it is doubtful if a Federal Board could do better. The problem then seems to be a satisfactory method of keeping delinquent children from (Continued on page 2)

Emerson College President Speaks

Henry L. Southwick Delivers Fine Address at Assembly; "Criticism" Is Subject of Talk

Last Monday the students of Rhode Island State College had the pleasure of listening to one of the most prominent speakers in New England, and one of the most popular speakers ever to appear before the Assembly. Henry L. Southwick, president of the Emerson College of Oratory, located in Boston, was our honored guest, and delivered an address which for force and appeal well substantiated his position at the head of the Boston School of Oratory. His subject, "Criticism," while not in the usual sense of the word a popular term, as Mr. Southwick remarked, proved to be a very interesting topic, nevertheless.

Mr. Southwick pointed out that there are two kinds of criticism. The first is constructive or virtuous. The second is destructive or vicious. Constructive criticism attempts to estimate, while destructive criticism or censoriousness attempts to belittle. Mr. Southwick stressed the fact that good criticism requires the will to be just, an effect to set standards, and educate taste. Helpful criticism is bound to upset complacency, but easy complacency leads to stagnation, and stagnation, to quote Mr. Southwick, "is the last station this side of damnation." A function of criticism is to test, and, in such a capacity, is a good judgment. "It is a lance; it is also a shield." Destructive criticism, on the other hand, "overturns your pail," and to illustrate here, the speaker told an amusing little story, which set the assembly in laughter.

The popular idea of the purpose of criticism is to show what's wrong with something. Its real purpose, Mr. Southwick said, is to show good. Although the criticism we are most afraid of is self-criticism, still it is the criticism which may be of the most value to us, for by taking a critical attitude toward ourselves we may stunt those qualities in us which will be detrimental to our character, and develop those which will be beneficial.

In conclusion the speaker discussed the main purposes of a college education, leaving his hearers with this parting thought: (Continued on Page 4)

Services Are Held For Arlene Bills

Funeral services were held last Monday afternoon for Arlene Evelyn Bills, 14, daughter of Prof. and Mrs. Frank H. Bills at the village church. Miss Bills was stricken with pneumonia very suddenly on Jan. 29. Her condition became worse as time went on until a day before her death when she was reported somewhat improved. Throughout the illness her temperature was very high and her condition very poor.

Friends, faculty and students were at the services with Rev. Harry McCready officiating. The bearers were Prof. Marshall Tyler, Prof. H. Louis Jackson, Prof. Joseph W. Ince and Lorenzo F. Kinney, Jr. Relatives and friends were present from Worcester, Salem, Lawrence and Providence. Entombment was at the Riverside Cemetery in Wakefield, while interment will be held in the Last Rest Cemetery at Merrimack, N. H.

The deepest sympathy is felt for Prof. Bills and family by the entire college.

In Memoriam

The entire sympathy of the college faculty and students is felt for Prof. Frank H. Bills and family in their recent loss of their daughter, Arlene.

An Economic Survey

In a few months there will be a new man directing the affairs of this college. Like every person who is a leader and thinker he will bring new ideas and customs with him. Not necessarily ideas of such a nature that will require a complete reform of everything within the college, but ideas which will in a great part have to do with the future destiny of Rhode Island State College. It will be expected of him to not only maintain the previous standards but to improve and bring about expansion. One man can do little without help from some source so there must be someone or some body of men to help him to accomplish his desires. What better at this time than to have a complete investigation of the affairs of the college and to hand over the result to the President so that he may have a very stable working basis.

One of the universities of this state had a complete survey in which many facts were divulged which had either been overlooked or concealed. These results have brought to light the absolute necessity for improvement in certain fields or departments of instruction.

Let us look at this matter from an economic viewpoint. As has already been mentioned a new president is to take charge shortly, and his theories for the conducting of the college work need a basis on which he may know where to start. Any capable man might start in and build up a fine system in any line of work, yet first he must know where to start and what needs to be cleared up or dropped completely. With such knowledge he may plan a campaign without the least bit of wasted time, accumulated by his being forced to find out from experience in what places his firm needs reorganization. Even then he may overlook some important feature. This time is an economic waste with the element of complete knowledge of the case missing.

A thorough survey of Rhode Island State College would place in Dr. Bressler's hands just that knowledge which may take a year or more for him to discover. There is the possibility that there are some things at the college which he could never remedy, being in his position as President. A survey would bring these to light and the proper authorities would be forced, through public sentiment, to cause their replacement or removal.

Alumni can testify to the fact that conditions at Rhode Island are not the best in the world, although the many privileges of the college are enjoyed to their fullest. Therefore a survey at this time would serve a two-fold purpose by bringing valuable information to Dr. Bressler and giving a great benefit to those students who are the present undergraduates.

The Village Church

Sunday, February 15

Morning worship, 10:45. Students of Rhode Island State College are cordially welcomed. The sermon will be on "The Challenge of Lent."

The Student Fellowship will meet at 7:30 at the manse, on the North Road. The first of the topics recently selected by the students will be discussed, probably that chosen by the largest number: "What kind of parents will the present generation make?"

A hearty "sing" and an hour of student fellowship will follow the discussion.

As We See It

It has been reported that our new President, Dr. Raymond G. Bressler, appeared on the campus this morning. At this time he will not take up his official duties but in all probability is here to obtain a home for his family and get acquainted with the college. The student body is waiting in anticipation for the coming Assembly when they may have the opportunity to hear him for the first time. He has been highly recommended and his capability has been assured with the experience which he has enjoyed and his knowledge of the task at hand.

Rev. Harry McCready is to be congratulated for his work on the Student Fellowship movement. The plan which has been presented readily authenticates this fact. Every student of the college should find time to be present at the talks which take place every Sunday night at the Manse.

Rhode Island College teams came to grief during the past week when Brown, Providence College and Rhode Island went down to defeat. At the present writing there are no undefeated basketball teams in New England and sports writers will have to do quite a little research on records before the intercollegiate champion may be selected. Sometimes a defeat puts new spirit into a team and consequently we are waiting to see what will follow this momentary depression.

It can't be a great deal of pleasure for teams to visit Rhode Island and hear the murmurs of dissent and sometimes outspoken cries that often follow referees' decisions. We wonder how many people who go to see college basketball games really know what it is all about and even those who do know something about it could stand a little brushing up on the rules. A referee's position is not always an enviable one. Let some of these fans try it and find out for themselves. But anyhow let's drop all "booing" and let people know that there is some college spirit at this institution.

Pennsylvania has taken a stand in regard to athletics that comes somewhat as a surprise and poorly maneuvered act in the opinion of the general sporting public. Rhode Island doesn't stand in a position to criticize this act but can and does justify Penn. The system of coach-teacher has been in effect here ever since the founding of the institution and it has fulfilled all hopes. Let anyone glance back through the records of our teams and note that victories far exceed defeats. Our coaches have always been at classes for a part of each morning and on the field during the afternoons. We congratulate Pennsylvania and wish them all the success that Rhode Island has enjoyed under the same system.

STEPPING INTO A MODERN WORLD

Now they manufacture weather for telephone testing

A test illustrating work in the Bell Telephone Laboratories is made with the weatherometer. This device produces rain and sunshine to order, and determines the weather-resisting properties of telephone equipment.

This test indicates an interesting habit of the men engaged in telephone research. It is to get sure knowledge bearing on efficiency, economy, life and reliability of apparatus.

Information is sought continuously during the development of a design, in advance of manufacture and of course long before the equipment gets into use.

Men who delight in thoroughness of method find that the opportunity is there.

bravely but this time they were up against a better team.

Panzer brought down with them
a different style of playing than any of the other teams which have played Rhody. Their passes were short and fast and their shooting accurate. Bodner was the key-man of their attack and it was centered

The Idler

Having unexpectedly survived the rigors of the exam season—and, along with a few others, the harsh decisions of faculty conclaves, etc., we shall proceed to present our version of things—lest for the want of something foolish enough this column, dedicated to nonsense, should go unfilled.

Well, anyway, the worst is over for awhile, and whether passed or flunked, most of us now know where we stand—and, as well, where we don't "stand in." But even getting by has its disagreeable aspects these days when the boys have taken to celebrating their success by plunging into the icy depths at Narragansett Pier. No wonder some folks say things are not what they used to be. Stories tell us there was once upon a time, a "warmer," though just as "spirited" means of observing "all is well."

We thought perhaps it was too good to last all season, but we hardly expected old man defeat to reach out from the directions he did and lay his heavy hand upon our hoopsters' record. But he did—and since he did it fairly and squarely, there isn't much sense in complaining. But even though Varsity and Frosh records no longer remain unblemished, the long string of victories, already earned, are something to look back upon with considerable satisfaction. At any rate—and this is more to the point—we're expecting a darn peppy exhibition on the polished boards Saturday night when the Nutmeggers attempt their annual invasion—and you bet there'll be a gang there to see it happen.

— The Idler.

CONN.—BROWN

The zero hour is nearing—Saturday night we start the first game in the most important series of the '30-'31 basketball season. Our arch-rivals from the neighboring state of Connecticut are bound for Rhody with the stiffest competition the Rams have had this year. The game has assumed the appearances of a bitter struggle since, as you know, these teams broke even last year—the Aggies winning in Connecticut and Rhody taking honors on the Kingston Court.

As most normal basketball clubs do, the Aggies have a star but in this case he's a comet—we refer to the versatile Chubuck, who is a three letter man and a big gun in the Aggie offensive. This man towers to the remarkable height of six feet three inches and tips the scales at two hundred and ten pounds. But for all his avoirdupois weight he is a leading dash man and stands out in national competition. The Aggies are however, handicapped by the loss of Darrow who was a blonde flash in the forward court last year.

Recently Brown University attacked Storrs and managed to nose out a 35-33 victory. Otherwise Connecticut has had a fair season and may be expected to stage a real battle.

And looking ahead to next week we find another deciding game slated for the eighteenth—Wednesday. Brown University heads for this little corner of the state with the best basketball team that has represented the institution in many a year. Until recently this quintet was undefeated but fate wrought the downfall of both Rhody and Brown on the same night. It was a rather poor team from Yale that so decisively trimmed Brown and broke their long chain of victories. After the ice was broken Brown fell humbly before the brilliant Princeton hoopsters.

CHI OMEGA HOLDS BANQUET, DANCE

patronesses, and the initiates, Ruth S. Chase, Pauline Coggeshall, Helen Glen and Alice Shawcross.

Chi Omega's annual formal house dance was held February 7. The affair was vivid, gay, and altogether smart. Bill Bailey's Orchestra from Newport furnished music that fairly went to the soles of your feet! Very good looking match cases were given as favors. Among the guests were a Chi Omega and a Lambda Chi from the University of Colorado. Several alumnae attended the dance also. The patrons and patronesses were: Mr. and Mrs. Herbert C. Wells, Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Keaney, Miss Mabel Dickson and Conrad Loener.

Marian Vaughn was in charge of the dance and Betty Pickersgill, Doris Vickere, Florence Allen, Mary Clancy and Margaret Gatzemier were on her committee.

To Sponsor Dance

Chi Omega is sponsoring a dance in Lippitt after the game Saturday night. Constance Stafford, who is in charge of the affair, has been able to secure the services of the "Sleepytown Serenaders" for the evening, and with such inspiring music the dance is expected to be a great success. Dancing is a good way to expend an overflow of pep—the result of witnessing such a game as the Connecticut one is sure to be—and a large, merry crowd is expected. Mr. and Mrs. Everett Christopher are to be patron and patroness.

"Criticism pedagogically applied is education."

Mr. Southwick proved to be one of the most entertaining speakers we have heard here at Assembly. He had a charm of personality about him that kept his hearers on their tiptoes, figuratively speaking, to catch every word he said.

He came here to Rhode Island State College fresh from a professional tour of the Northwest and Canada. He has engagements to speak here and there throughout this section of the country all the time. He is already booked for three commencement addresses and is in correspondence with several other schools and colleges. Next summer for the eighth consecutive season President Southwick will conduct a travel-study tour abroad.

Arc Welding

Diminishes the Din of Steel
Construction to a Whisper

IN Boston—Dallas—Los Angeles—and in other cities, lofty buildings are going up so quietly that the passerby all but stops and strains an ear for the old familiar clangor.

Silently, swiftly, rigidly, economically, arc welding knits steel with joints as strong as the metal itself.

Arc welding is being used more and more in the fabrication of buildings and machinery, the construction of pipe lines and tanks, and as a repair tool of universal utility.

Development of General Electric arc welding has largely been the work of college-trained men. Others of the college men at General Electric are largely responsible for the high reputation won by hundreds of G-E products used in industry and in the home during the last thirty-seven years.
